

Commission opens infringement procedures against 24 Member States for not transposing new EU telecom rules

The Commission has opened infringement procedures against 24 Member States for failing to enact new EU telecom rules. The European Electronic Communications Code modernises the European regulatory framework for electronic communications, to enhance consumers' choices and rights, for example by ensuring clearer contracts, quality of services, and competitive markets. The Code also ensures higher standards of communication services, including more efficient and accessible emergency communications.

Furthermore, it allows operators to benefit from rules incentivising investments in very-high capacity networks, as well as from enhanced regulatory predictability, leading to more innovative digital services and infrastructures.

Full press release

Related topics

Connectivity Electronic communications and Privacy Telecom rules

Source URL:

<https://digital-strategy.ec.europa.eu/news/commission-opens-infringement-procedures-against-24-member-states-not-transposing-new-eu-telecom>